

5 SIGNS YOU'RE READY FOR A DISTRIBUTED ORDER MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

01

Hello, new customers!

Additional sales channels (eBay, Amazon, The Iconic etc) are your jam and you need a consolidated view of your ATS inventory. Oversells are a big no-no and can hurt your brand big time!

02

Your network is good to go.

You have the locations (stores, warehouses, dropshipper etc) to make your omnichannel fulfillment dreams come true, but need the technology to bring your dreams into reality.

03

Stock needs to get moving.

Distressed stock is sitting in stores looking rather, well, distressed. You need a solution to turn this stock over and connect it with the customer before it turns into a metaphorical pumpkin.

04

You need to scale.

You promised yourself no more manual handling of orders after last year's chaotic sale period. You know if your systems and processes can't scale to meet peak demand, you can bid your customers and sales a fond adios.

05

Customers expect more.

Customers want MORE MORE MORE! More delivery options, faster order turn around, shipments in full, lightening-fast shipping and continuous communication throughout the order process.

Like to learn more about OMS and DOM Systems?

Check out our eBook: An Introduction to OMS DOM Systems for Ecommerce

LET'S GO